Towne-Center Complex Approved

By E. SCOTT WOOD
Of The News Staff

Approval was given to the San Marino Development Co., Inc. to establish an Upland Towne Center Development on 9.1 acres located on D St. east of Third Ave. in downtown Upland.

The controversial project consists of a 5,500 square foot commercial building, a 70 unit (5 story) apartment building, a 100 unit (6 story) apartment building, two 66 unit (6 story) condominium unit buildings and three (1 story) recreation buildings. The 302 housing units are designed for use by middle aged and retired people.

Speaking for the project, realtor Ralph Miller, traced the background of the acreage and noted the difficulties in developing the parcel encountered since 1935. The location of the grain storage facilities and railroad tracks on the perimeter of the property had previously made development unfeasible.

Miller noted that the proposed project would generate business for the downtown area and also living conditions for the retired and elderly desirable with the close proximity of the downtown services.

Speaking against the project, Ina Petokas of Upland pointed out to council members that five and six story structures are unsuitable not only for the elderly who have mobility problems but for the younger residents as well, as the tall buildings generate more isolation between tenants.

Mrs. Petokas was joined by Upland Homeowner Association president, Norman Day, in questioning the availability of adequate fire protection for multiple story structures.

Day pointed out that even though the proposed buildings will be concrete, paint will be used and furniture placed in the building which could burn. Residents, especially the elderly, would need to be rescued from the top floors in case of a fire, and it was noted that the Upland fire department at present doesn't have the necessary equipment to handle such a situation.

Upland Fire Chief Leon Lamphear, in a telephone interview, confirmed the inadequacy charge noting that what was needed for the tall building rescue was an aerial ladder or "snorkel." The articulated arm, 85 feet in length, would have a basket on the end and would be capable of rescuing three to four people at one time. The aerial ladder and equipment truck would cost the city $100,000 dollars.

Lamphear also pointed out that present equipment is adequate for Upland's present needs and that as the city develops, plans for expanding the fire department will be followed to meet the changing needs of the city.

He also noted that through a mutual aid agreement, Pomona and Ontario can be called upon to help out in Upland for fires that require equipment.

Councilman John McCarthy said "The property has sat fetal for many years, being very difficult to develop." He also noted that the declining downtown business area would receive a "shot in the arm" from such a development. McCarthy also said that the progress of the San Antonio Community Hospital would necessitate the expansion of the fire department so that costs for new equipment would not be directed for the Towne Center alone.

On a motion from McCarthy and seconded by Councilman Max Hawkins the Conditional Use permit was approved unanimously with councilmen Gibson and Bailin absent.

In other business, the Council authorized initiation of condemnation proceedings on 113 square feet of property owned by Raymond Berry of 370 W. 24th St. in Upland for drainage easement for neighboring property developed by the Claraboya Construction Co.

In the discussion that followed, Norman Day, president of the Upland Homeowners Association, called the attention of the Council to the fact that the Claraboya Construction Co. had not followed recommendations by the Council to negotiate with Mr. Berry during a two week session late in Sept.

Quoting from Council minutes of Sept. 17, Day said Councilman "Hawkins moved to continue consideration of the drainage alignment for Tract 8823 until the next meeting of Council (10/1/73) in order for Claraboya Construction Co. to try to work out something with Eugene Bello and Berry."

In further discussion it was determined that Claraboya did contact realtor Bello who is handling property south of the Claraboya acreage in the two week time period but did not contact Berry assuming an offer made in March of this year was a "standing offer" of either $600,000 or the best of two appraisals made on the property. Day questioned the Council's reasoning for proceeding with condemnation proceedings when, as Day said "Claraboya has not done what you (the Council) asked."

When confronted by the question, the Council assumed its characteristic silence, broken by Mayor Haldeman's question directed to Larry Fagan of the construction firm. "Were any appraisals made?" Haldeman asked. Fagan indicated that he assumed appraisals would be made if Mr. Berry indicated that he favored such a plan.

Berry refused the offer. Councilman Max Hawkins made the motion to initiate the condemnation proceedings against the Berry property. The motion initiated by Councilman Hawkins is the 7th concerning the easement controversy. Hawkins has moved two times to continue the hearings, two times to proceed with easement procedures, one time to deny the filing of an Environmental Impact Report, and two times to condemn the property. The motion was carried unanimously with Councilmen Gibson and Bailin absent.

A resolution that would authorize the filing of an application for a grant for Regional Communications Project was defeated by one vote.

Since two councilmen were absent the measure needed a unanimous vote of approval of the three remaining members of the Council for approval since the resolution concerned allocation of money.

Councilman Max Hawkins cast the desenting vote saying that even though Upland's share of the inter-community project was relatively small ($800) the rest of the proposed $100,000.00 supplied by other cities and the grant was taxpayer money. Hawkins said he was "disenchanted with recent studies," indicating that the benefit of the studies seemed to go to the people conducting the study instead of the organizations requesting the work.

Police Chief John Wessely in explaining the program assured the Council that the "hard cash" outlay for Upland would be about $800.00 with contributions in man power and equipment in proportion to Upland's share of the cost.

Local Resident Named To Education Post

With the task of taking a fresh look at the programs for the gifted in California's schools, a blue-ribbon statewide 15 member committee has been appointed by Superintendent of Public Instruction Wilson Riles.

Named to the committee is Bill R. Plaster, superintendent of the Upland Elementary School District.

In his letter of invitation, Sup. Wilson Riles said: "Although we have had programs for the gifted for some time, I think it is about time that we take a fresh look at where we have been, where we are, and where we should go."

Riles, at recent speaking engagements and at press conferences, has been asked to comment on the status of the program for the gifted in the state. "I want to know how we can better identify the gifted. In fact, what does gifted mean? How much do we recognize creativity? These are some of the questions for which I want experts to help find the answers," he said.

Also in the letter to committee members, Riles asked that the committee finish its work and come up with recommendations by Feb. 1, 1974. "Although the task of the committee will not be an easy one, I am delighted that you are willing to accept this assignment and challenge," the Superintendent concluded.

IT'S OFFICIAL -- City Manager Elwin "Pinky" Alder, Mayor Abner Haldeman, Mayor pro-tem John McCarthy and Councilman Max Hawkins "put their backs into it" and conclude groundbreaking ceremonies for the new City Hall. Construction is scheduled to be completed 250 calendar days from groundbreaking, Tuesday, Oct. 9.

Ground Broken For New City Hall

City Manager, Elwin "Pinky" Alder, Mayor Abner Haldeman and Councilman John McCarthy and Max Hawkins literally "put their backs" into it during the ground breaking ceremony of the Upland City Hall Tuesday, Oct. 9.

Speaking through a megaphone over the thundering trucks on Euclid Avenue, Mayor Haldeman noted that the ground breaking was "another milestone in the history of Upland," and expressed appreciation to all those who contributed their time and effort in getting the project underway.

The 20 minute ceremony attended mostly by city employees was ended by some furious digging on the part of former mayor Max Hawkins, Mayor pro-tem John McCarthy, Mayor Abner Haldeman, and City Manager Elwin Alder.

Some fast and furious digging of another type will have to take place in the near future to cover the cost of the new city hall. The total bill for construction of the complex will amount to $818,900 as explained at the last City Council meeting which will leave $103,186 to be funded.

City Present At Conference In Mexico

The city of Upland was represented at the Community Relations Association's Conference held in Tecate, Mexico on Friday, Oct. 12.

Upland's Community Relations Coordinator John Shoemaker received the invitation from the association and represented Upland, the only West End Community to participate in the conference.

Other communities receiving invitations to attend the seminar based on their achievements in the area of community relations were San Francisco, San Jose, Santa Cruz, Salinas, Merced, Fresno, Bakersfield, Santa Barbara and San Diego.

The one day conference featuring as guest speaker Lieutenant Governor Francisco Peralta of Baja was designed to promote better understanding of the Mexican culture, and develop better insight on the customs of the Mexican people in the local communities.

When asked why Upland received an invitation over other West End Cities, Shoemaker replied, "Our city, I feel, is unique because of the close relationships and communications we have between the Police and all other city departments, especially the Housing Authority and the people of the city."

Fire Safety Program Underway In Upland

In an effort to place a fire extinguisher in every home in Upland, the Upland Fire Department Women's Club and Junior Women's Club are visiting the elementary schools in the area during Fire Prevention Week providing a fire safety demonstration and free baking soda to the students as an effective fire retardant in the home.

With one ton of baking soda purchased by the Junior Women's Club, Fire Marshall Paul Harmon is visiting each elementary school in the area showing the effectiveness of the soda on common grease fires that occur in the kitchen. The children are provided with coffee cans labeled as fire extinguishers and are shown how to apply baking soda to a fire.

Demonstrating all the finesse of a wild west medicine show, Harmon provides his own frying pan, cooking oil, gasoline (to heat the oil to the burning point) then starts his own conflagration. In seconds the fire is put out by a few applications of the baking soda to the cheers of the grade school firemen.

Each child is then provided with enough baking soda to fill his coffee can-extinguisher, and admonished to take it home and educate his parents on fire safety.

Harmon hopes to reach more than 700 students in this phase of Fire Prevention Week and in this way educate Upland's residents on simple fire prevention procedures.

HOMEMADE EXTINGUISHER -- Coffee can extinguisher of Kenny Hunt is filled with baking soda by Fire Marshall Paul Harmon and Donna Bales of the Upland Jr. Women's Club. The fire department and service club joined forces to educate children and adults on fire safety during fire prevention week.

Reagan's Proposition 1 Attacked By CTA

"Gov. Reagan has been accused of trying to buy a statewide election with a million-dollar down payment."

The accusation was made by Bryan Stevens, president of the California Teachers Association of which the Central Teachers Organization of Cucamonga is a member. The CTA is one of a score of statewide organizations banded together in a coalition to defeat Reagan's tax scheme, Prop. 1, at the special election in Nov.

"The governor's campaign organization reported to the Secretary of State yesterday that it has collected $435,327 to date to pass this tax scheme," Stevens said. "But that's just the tip of the iceberg."

"In August, Reagan reported, again through his campaign organization, that he had collected and spent $436,452 to put the measure on the ballot," Stevens added.

"And in the same month, he admitted dipping into the State Welfare Fund, unemployment compensation, other tax-supported funds and diverting $161,000 to put the proposition together."

Stevens announced he has filed suit in Sacramento Superior Court to force the governor to replace the $161,000.

Stevens said, "The total pumped into the campaign thus far exceeds a million dollars, $1,032,779 to be exact. But that's far from the whole story. The special election itself will cost the taxpayers $20 million. It would have cost them nothing extra if the measure had been placed on the June primary ballot next year. But the governor knows the measure would never pass with a large voter turnout at a regular election," Stevens added.

Stevens alleged that another million dollar investment is planned for promoting the passage of the tax measure utilizing television and newspaper advertising.

The proposal, known as Prop. 1, will be voted on Nov. 6. It would constitutionally limit the amount of money the state could spend in any given year, based on a percentage of total personal income for that year.

At the heart of the tax limitation initiative is the question of whether state expenditures can be reduced by 20 percent over 15 years without a corresponding increase in local taxes.

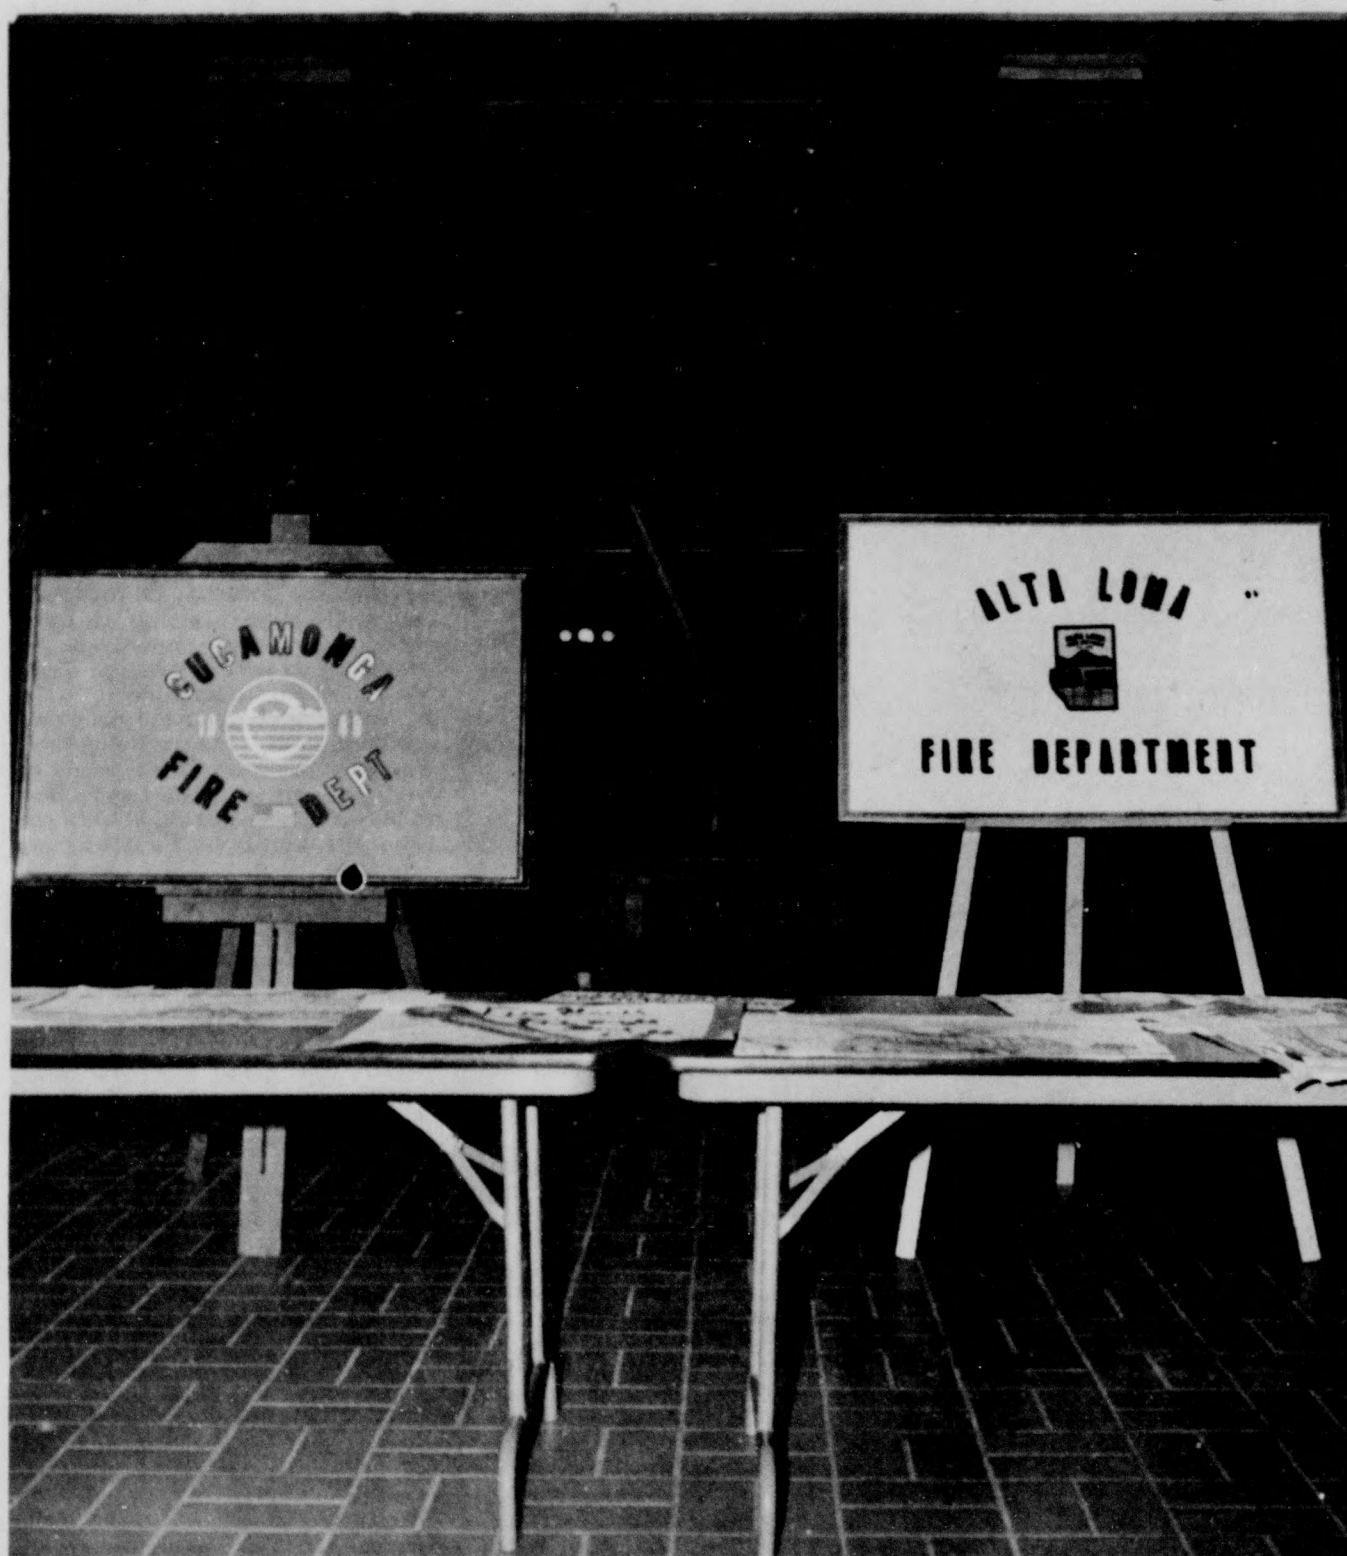

Under the provisions of the tax initiative, limitations would be placed on all local property taxes except school district taxes. The property tax rate would be frozen at the maximum tax rate of the last two fiscal years.

However, the tax rate limitation initiative also provides that voters could raise their local tax rates. Prop. 1 requires a two-thirds legislative vote for new or changed state taxes. The present law requires a simple majority for changes in state taxation.

Locally, Proposition 1 has been endorsed by both the Cucamonga and Upland Chambers of Commerce.

"This plan prohibits the legislature from mandating programs," said Randy Bond, president of the Upland Chamber of Commerce. "Our legislators are no longer going to have carte blanche, they're going to have to budget the state's money. The intention is not to shift taxes to local governments," Bond said.

Taking issue with that particular point, Lawrence Waggoner, president of the Upland Teachers Association said the "proposal, in effect, will eliminate the positive effects of SB 90 by causing a tax shift from the state back to the local property owner."

UNIFIED -- The Alta Loma and Cucamonga Fire protection districts were working together for at least a little while in the Montclair Plaza. The two districts combined their school poster displays done by area elementary students in conjunction with Fire Protection Week.

'He Doesn't Like You Very Much Either!'

By Donald W. Reynolds
President, Donrey Media

COSTA DEL SOL, SPAIN -- "Lo peor de la vida es la mala suerte," says the taxi driver, waiter, bartender, sales person, room clerk and all of the other natives serving the tourist hordes that flood the beaches here.

Not being a very good linguist, I asked for a translation and had surprising difficulty in getting it. Finally found a bi-lingual waiter that embarrassingly explained that the rather free translation was that "The worst of the locusts have gone." And for more than a week the roads have been bumper to bumper, the buses packed and the "no space available" recording on the airline phones.

I have found that few tourists are happy with the accommodations, food or general acceptance, but had taken it as the normal griping of travelers. It was just a little bit surprising to find that the hosts were even happier to see the guests leaving than were the guests to leave.

One of my favorite stories, told as only the late Joe E. Lewis could tell a story: After quite a build up Joe would introduce his long time piano player, Mr. Mack. The audience perfunctorily applauded, and then Lewis, with the perfect timing that made him one of the greatest standup comedians of his time, brought the house down as he drawled, "He doesn't like you very much either!"

Since the days of the Roman Empire, tourism, under many names, has been an integral part of European history. Be it the legions of Caesar or the retired folks on the American Express bus, almost two thousand years hasn't truly changed the picture. The guests still make the host doubly glad - twice happy - when they arrive and when they go. And while the money brought in is accepted, in some instances quite graciously, the sigh of relief on the "locusts" departure is definitely audible.

So why travel? I've talked to many almost professional vagabonds who have toured the world. Complaining about everything, but always returning for more, money hunger stimulates the promotions, travel agents and all of those profiting from the visitors. Perhaps the best explanation for the wanderers was given me in answer to the question,

"What spot do you like best of all?" And the laconic reply, "The place I prefer is where I haven't been!" Got your bag packed?

City: 'No' To Helicopter Service

Upland will not participate in a proposed helicopter surveillance program proposed for cities in the West End.

Upland Police Chief John Wessely said he "didn't feel that the benefit we would derive from the program would justify the cost."

He said the program would cost the city $9,000 for the first year, but after federal funds supporting the project run out in three years it might cost as much as $85,000 yearly.

Captain Terry Jagerson of the San Bernardino Sheriff's Department said the helicopters would be used as patrol vehicles to provide observation capability with a reduction of crime as one of the primary goals.

Jagerson said the helicopters would be used for narcotics and burglary surveillance, rescues, searches, reporting of fires and emergency services such as blood transportation from one hospital to the next.

Jagerson said a similar program is now used in unincorporated areas of the county.

He cited statistics which showed before the introduction of helicopters burglaries were increasing an annual rate of 6.9 percent.

After helicopters were introduced, the burglary rate dropped 10 percent. The statistics apply similarly for robbery, auto theft and theft.

Helicopters are designed to serve as a deterrent and help catch lawbreakers in the act, said Jagerson.

The Upland Homeowner's Association, in its October newsletter, speculated that the city's failure to take part in the program may make it a prime burglary target.

Ayala To Be Featured On 'Impacto'

San Bernardino County Supervisor Ruben S. Ayala of the Fourth District will be one of three featured guests on KNBC's "Impacto" at 4 p.m. this Saturday for a discussion of the State Master Plan For Reapportionment.

Ayala will appear with Attorney Rudy Mantejano of Santa Ana and Richard Martinez, a member of the Chicano Coalition for Fair Reapportionment.

Program hosts will be David Ochoa and Yolanda Nava as Channel 4 studies implications of the master plan and its impact on ethnic representation in Congress and the State Legislature.

Ayala testified in July before the State Supreme Court's Special Masters on Reapportionment during a series of hearings which resulted in the master plan.

Community History

-- Did you know in '53: The elevation of Euclid Ave. and Foothill Blvd. is 1,000 feet; within the city limits are 12 square miles; the city owns its water department and profit from that department helps keep the tax rate down. Euclid Ave. is 14 miles in length from south of Ontario to 24th St.; six citrus packing houses handle the city's big crop of oranges, lemons and grapefruit; 2 elementary schools and one junior high school make up the elementary education system; 12 churches serve the community; more than 350 local people are employed by Kaiser Steel.

Mixed reactions have followed the refusal of the Upland Planning Commission to allow General Telephone Co. to use a West Foothill Blvd. site for a new building. Why should any local agency deny the wish of a company that desires to erect an attractive building anywhere on the city's principally-traveled highway?

On the other hand -- why should a big corporation seek to go contrary to a preconceived plan for development of the community?

It seems there's plenty of East Foothill frontage in the business zone and why shouldn't the company use such an area rather than to "invade" an agricultural zone?

The editorial continues to say: "We readily concede that the proposed telephone company building would be a major addition to the boulevard -- whether it is east or west of Euclid Ave. And if business is to be allowed any place on the boulevard, the company should be granted its requested zone change."

If, on the other hand, only East Foothill Blvd. frontage is going to be used for business, there's good reason to deny the application.

News writer Gerry McGeer wrote a lengthy article on how incorporation actually came about 50 years ago. There's a picture of the historic passenger car that traveled up and down Euclid Ave. -- pulled by a team of horses (which rode on a platform down Euclid and pulled the car back up the avenue).

McGeer reported in '56 that The News reported there were 1,500 citizens in Upland at the time of incorporation. "The movement for incorporation was not without opposition. The opposition, or some of it, as recorded in The News originated in Ontario and according to the lively editor -- the late Mrs. E. L. Westland, the newspaper of the neighboring city was behind the opposition," said McGeer.

The school bond election seems to be the single crucial factor which got people of Upland thinking about a separation from Ontario. (The school bond election and a supreme court decision allowing Ontario to annex territory south of A St., was the "last straw.")

A petition for incorporation was printed in The News in Feb. 16, 1906. On March 6 the petition was to be presented to the county Board of Supervisors.

A full page ad detailed Sunday's program for the Golden Anniversary Party in Upland's Memorial Park. The program provided a variety of different types of entertainment for all ages. A community basket dinner was served from 12-1 p.m. Highlighting the entertainment program was "Texas Ben and His Western Round Up Gang," "Silvers the Clown," the Chaffey high school band, roving Mexican musicians and the combined bands of the Edwards Air Force base and the George Air Force base. Miss Linda Barnhart, Upland's 1956 queen, was crowned and Mrs. Harold Griss, who was "Mrs. Upland" was also noted.

A contest was conducted by the Upland Chamber of Commerce to seek out the "Personality of the Century." The winner was to be specially honored Sunday in the park. Listed on the ballot were: Ernest Fischer, Dr. Merton E. Hill, Col. D. J. Rutherford, Dr. Kenneth Wilcox, Mrs. Effie Hood, Allan Barr, Harry M. Wright, Howard Mason, Mrs. W. R. Mason, R. Fred Price, Norman S. Lawson, Paul Schowalter, P. H. McQuillen, E. Tweed Stone, John B. Atwood, Dr. Mary Craig and T. Kirk Vernon.

Upland stores awarded $500 in cash to customers this week in 1956. Customers obtained tickets and the money was being awarded during Sunday's celebration. The money was offered by merchants as part of the city-wide Anniversary Sale.

In his front page column, "Keeping Up with Uplanders," editor Vernon W. Paine said: "People make up a community. What people do determines the 'character' of a community. That was true 50 years ago and it's true today."

He continued to say, "Very, very much has been done in the last 50 years to make Upland a very highly desirable community in which to live. Good people make a good community. And so, we look ahead, optimistic and hopeful that people of this generation and the next will be just as good and courageous and fair and capable as were the leaders in the community 50 years ago."

Oktoberfest Busch Gardens To Celebrate

All the music, color, gaiety and splendor of the internationally-famous Oktoberfest will permeate Southern California Oct. 19 through 28 when Busch Gardens hosts its own celebration at the popular family entertainment center.

Highlighting the 10-day Oktoberfest, which is being planned in conjunction with the United European American Club, will be a myriad of international entertainment shows featuring singers, dancers and music to suit the entire family.

The Oktoberfest will officially begin on Friday, Oct. 19, at 6:30 p.m. with a parade through Busch Gardens featuring the entertainers and many of the Gardens' popular "characters" led by the "Friendly Eagle."

According to Jack Massae, general manager of Busch Gardens, the entertainment will be varied in ethnic origin and will include contemporary music for the youth as well as international forms.

"Although the Oktoberfest is indigenous to Munich, West Germany, we thought we would add a little international flavor to our version by adding dancing groups representing other countries."

Massae pointed out, however, that the central theme and atmosphere of their Oktoberfest will definitely be German and will include yodelers, Bavarian Folkdancers, brass bands, a Bavarian Shoeplatter Dance Group and a 10-day performance by Sigi Rodman and his Continental Orchestra.

Nearly a dozen dance groups are expected to entertain during the Oktoberfest, including: Swedish, Irish, Scottish and Hungarian folk dancers as well as Italian, Mexican, Polynesian, Balcan, Estonian and Japanese dance groups.

All the dance performances and the bulk of the other entertainment will be performed on a 20-by-50 foot stage located near the Budweiser Pavilions in the scenic complex. Massae added that music for public dancing will also be featured throughout the Oktoberfest.

Several rock groups will perform to add a contemporary touch to the entertainment and an appearance will be made by the San Fernando Valley Youth Band.

Massae said the "festival atmosphere" would also be enhanced by a series of booths located throughout the complex of lush landscaping, lagoons and waterways which would contain souvenir merchandise of Germany.

Commenting on the initiation of the Oktoberfest concept at Busch Gardens, Massae remarked: "We felt it might be fun to capture a little of the spirit and excitement of this world-renowned event and bring it to the people of Southern California."

Besides, where would it be more appropriate to have it than at Busch Gardens," Massae said, adding that the Gardens' three pavilions -- Michelob, Busch Bavarian and Budweiser -- would serve adults as is their normal custom.

Massae said normal admission prices (good for all rides and attractions) would prevail. During the Oktoberfest Busch Gardens 16000 Roscoe Blvd., Van Nuys will be open Monday-Thursday and Sunday, 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. and Friday-Saturday, 10 a.m. to midnight.

'Swing Your Partner'

By E. Scott Wood

Besides the many fad items enjoying a revival today—early 50's rock music, hair styles, clothing—a part of the American Culture, square dancing, is also back with every indication that it is here to stay.

The revival is not a recent one and the well organized clubs of people that share this special interest are growing in numbers every year.

Square dancing, like so many group activities in America that pre-date the latest television season, seems to suffer a stigma of being out-dated, even "corny." This appears to be the stiffest obstacle the local square dance groups face in encouraging new members. However, all it takes to overcome the fear of being seen publicly enjoying yourself, of laughing in public, and worst of all meeting new people is to force yourself to turn off the tv and go out, actually go out to a square dance.

That's quite a step for some people, but have courage, you won't be alone. There are no less than 16 square dance clubs in the Pomona-Ontario area with clubs locally in Monclair, La Verne, San Dimas and Diamond Bar.

One such club, located in Cucamonga, is called the Ox Bow Squares, and like many of the clubs holds a dance once a month, at the Central School in Cucamonga. Their dancing doesn't stop there, however, as all the clubs in the area hold dances at different times of the month and days of the week and club visitations are the rule rather than the exception. "You could dance any night of the week," said Gordon Baird past president of the Ox Bow Squares, "all the clubs are in a ten mile radius and between club dances, lessons and special parties you always have some place to go."

All the clubs belong to one association that coordinates and informs members on the clubs activities. The Cow Counties Hoedown Association is comprised of 65 square dance clubs covering the Inland Empire, and high and low desert.

Most of the clubs sponsor lessons for beginners and that way gain new members. Membership is growing too as the Ox Bows have doubled in membership from 1969 when the club was founded.

Lessons are started frequently through-out the year and usually run for about thirty weeks. In that time a beginner can become fairly accomplished in the dance and master more than 60 maneuvers.

The steps always look complicated from the side-lines but according to Baird "it's not complicated, but it does require concentration. You can have fun, but you have to listen to the caller, if you don't there's a mess," he said.

The age groups vary surprisingly from the thirtyish to well into the sixties. Baird attributes the adult grouping to the fact that alot of dancing (it gets to be a habit he says) can be costly providing for baby sitters and such. There are teen groups and pre-teen groups in the association however.

Costs are kept to a minimum with a nominal fee charged for lessons, usually no dues for club membership and sometimes donations collected at the door of a dance to cover the cost of refreshments.

"That's another thing," Baird said, "There is no drinking these days at a square dance, before or during class or club dance. One of our famous quotes is 'allegre, mande and alcohol don't mix'."

Square dancing is a team effort," said Baird and the "team" philosophy extends into every aspect of the club. When recent election of officers for the Ox Bows was announced, the president, vice president, secretary and treasurer positions were all filled by man and wife teams, not individuals.

"There's more to this than just dancing," Baird added, "people want to be together so we gave these dances, we also have picnics and other parties for fun."

There is no competition among dancers and among clubs the only competition comes from visitations to see which club gets around the most.

Clubs make banners of felt mounted on wooden rods and bearing their name and symbols. These are brought to the dances and other club members visiting who bring enough people to form two squares (16 people) carry off the banners and that way add to the collection.

The spirit of the club, and very often the main attraction of the dance is the dance caller. Callers, both men and women have to be able to sing, speak clearly and yet be as fast as an auctioneer.

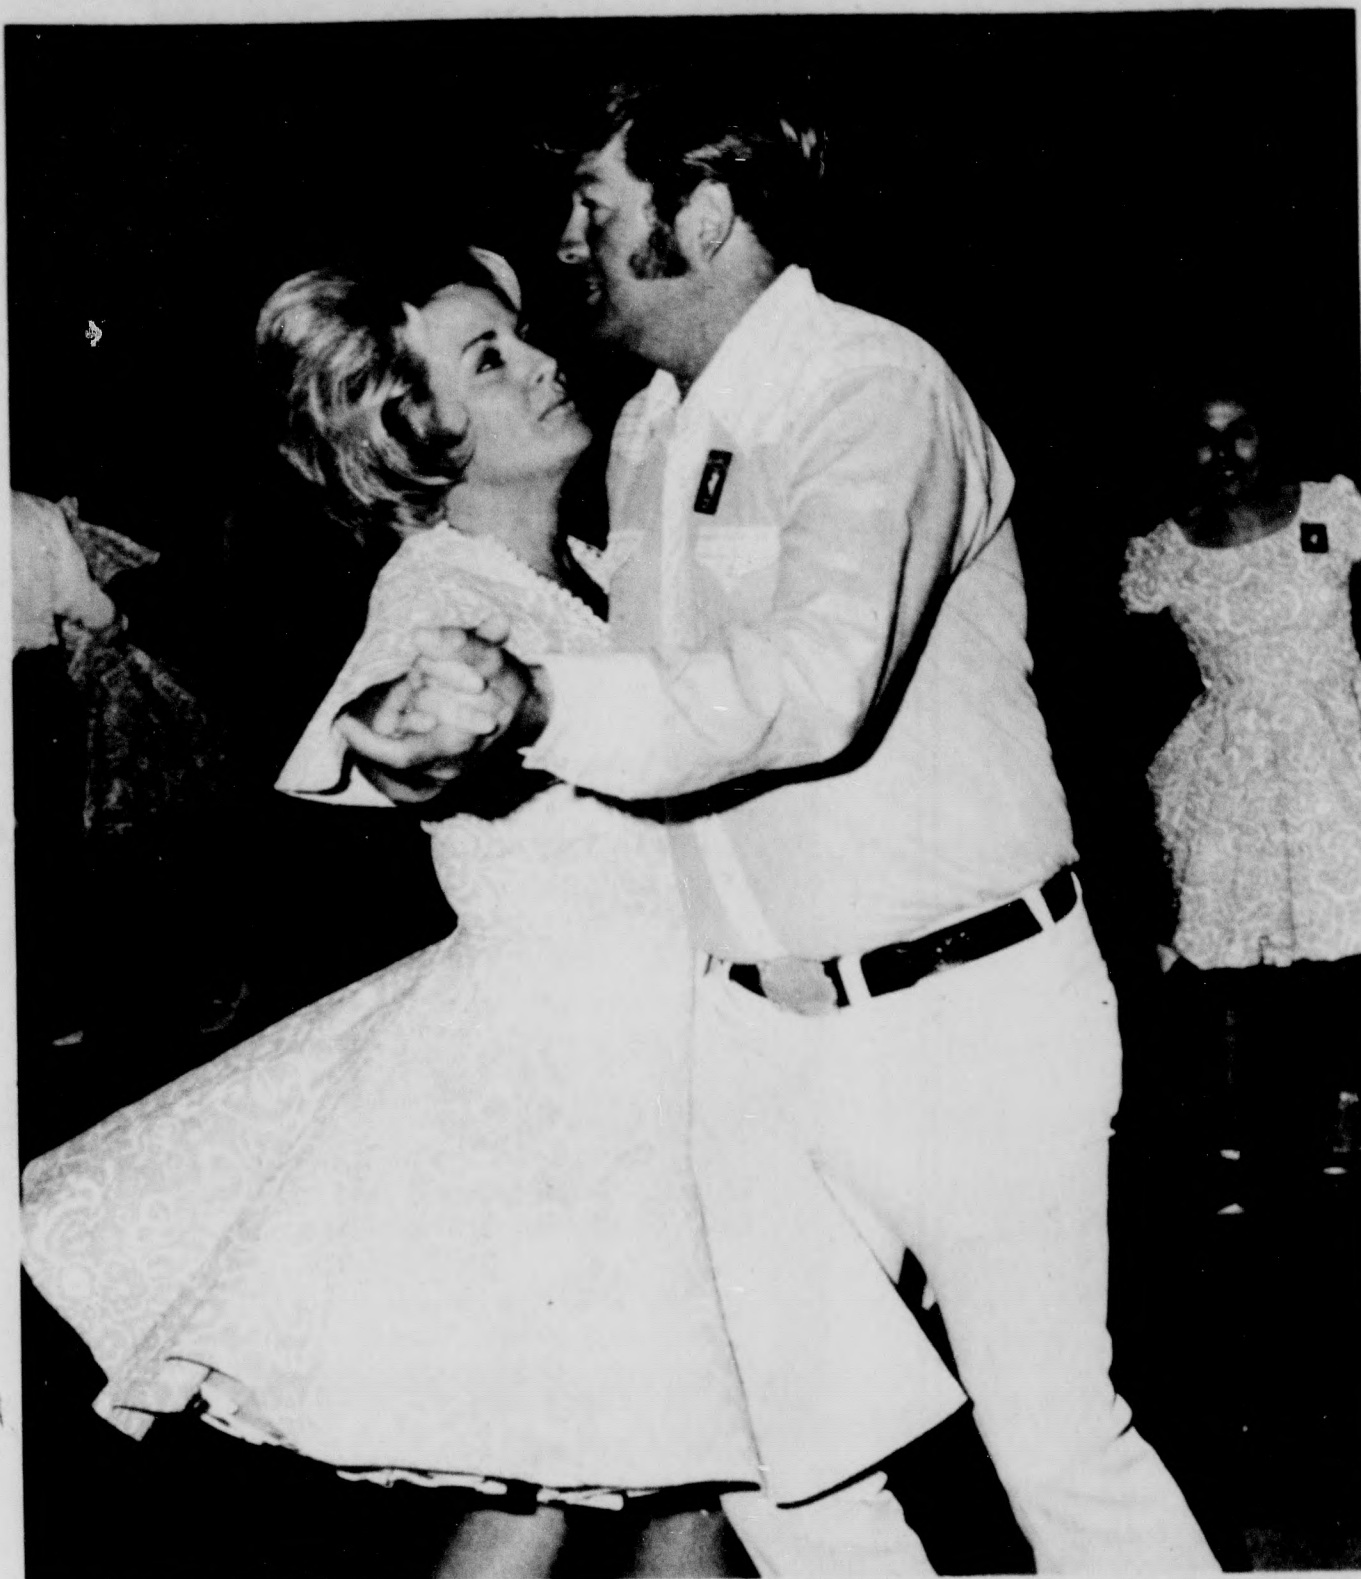

The Ox Bow Caller is Dell Morgan of Upland, who has been teaching square dancing for nine years. In June of 1968 Dell started a square dance class in Chino, the class moved to Upland and members started their own club with his help. They became the Ox Bow Squares and Dell has been calling for them ever since.

Besides the regular monthly dances, Dell, like most callers of the area teaches Square Dancing and guest calls for other clubs. Morgan and his wife Ruth call dances five or six nights a week now and is always enthusiastic. From his calls, the dancers respond, and the enthusiasm is contagious.

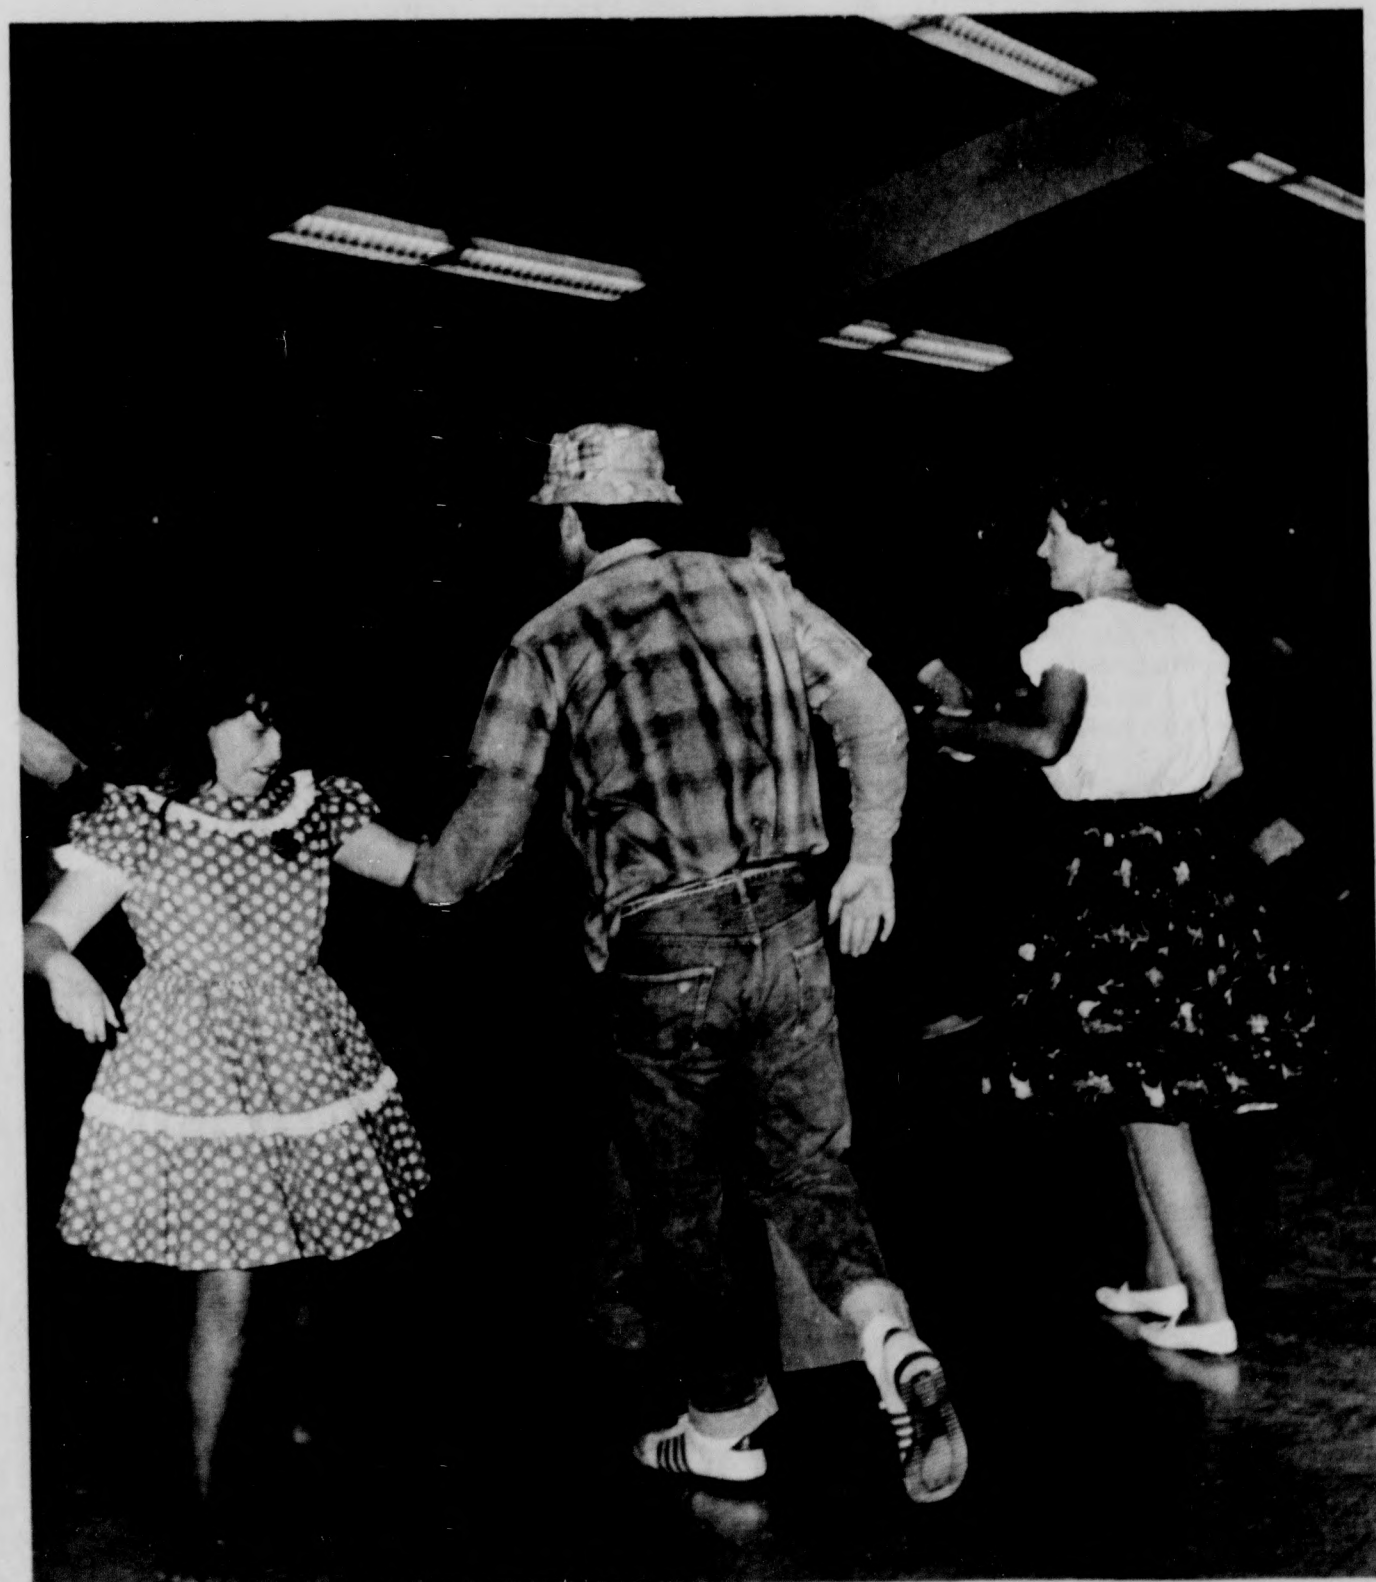

The Ox Bows have had as many as 290 people come to their dances, which usually have a different theme each month. Oct. hosted the Hobo dance and most dancers arrived in costume. They brought their cameras, their banners and their friends.

SPIRIT OF THE DANCE -- The caller, Dell Morgan, sets the tempo of the dance and calls the maneuvers. If his enthusiasm is high, and it usually is, the dancers follow suit.

SWING YOUR PARTNER -- Such common phrases as "swing your partner" and "doe se doe" come to mind to the average citizen when thinking of square dancing, but callers today seem to veer away from the archaic phrases using newer expressions like "turn like the ocean wave" to instruct their dancers. The dance this reporter attended lasted over three hours and didn't hear one "doe se doe."

AGE IS NO BARRIER -- Most dancers in the area are adult but there is no rule that teens and pre-teens cannot participate and do as well as the senior members of the clubs. There are Square Dance Clubs specifically designed for teens and pre-teens in the area.

IN COSTUME -- Two members of the Ox Bow Square Dance Club pose in costume for the Hobo Theme of the October dance held at the Central School in Cucamonga. Dances are held once a month on the first Saturday.

CRIME IN THE STREETS

Assault!

It stands first on the list of crimes a woman fears most—and last on the list of crimes a victim wants to talk about...

RAPE

Through the gap between the two extremes many assault cases slip into oblivion, unreported, unrecorded—but never forgotten by the women involved.

In legal terminology, rape is the carnal knowledge of a woman against her will. Last year, almost 70 out of every 100,000 individuals in a metro area were reported forcible victims.

Since 1960, according to FBI statistics, the rising number of rape reports (up 114%) indicate the women are finally beginning to report the crime, instead of covering up.

Help for victims of this heinous crime is now available 24 hours a day, at a recently established Rape Crisis Center, Washington, D.C.

Chrysanthemums

This Year

And Next

It's hard to imagine a fall garden without Chrysanthemums, for this hardy perennial offers a colorful way to announce autumn's arrival.

Mums are planted extensively throughout California because they are extremely easy to care for and provide a rewarding performance. To describe 'Mums as fall-flowering is a disservice really. Certain varieties bloom in mid-to-late summer—others are flowering well into December.

Nurseries have 'Mums plants available right now. Some are just showing color, others are at the peak of perfection. Shopping for 'Mums is a fun family outing. Investigating the possibilities—from a wealth of shades of colors and myriad flower forms—and making selections of different plants is an educational and beautiful experience. For sure, the youngsters will find a plant or two that strikes their fancy. As 'Mums bloom year after year, this is an inexpensive teaching process, where the beauty can be shared annually by the entire family.

Home gardeners delight in button-types, pompons, daisy forms, decoratives, spoons, spiders, anemone, and exhibition types. These are readily available in nurseries and shopping will turn up even more forms—each with unique characteristics. If the various categories sound confusing, don't let that deter you from growing and enjoying varieties you like, personally. What you like should guide your selections.

Set out the plants in the garden or use them in pots or decorative containers to display on the porch or patio. The blooming plants can be enjoyed for several days indoors—where they serve as festive and cheery fall decorations in the home.

When you do plant 'Mums in the garden choose a planting site that receives sun at least two-thirds of the day, advises the California Association of Nurserymen. In hot, interior valleys afternoon shade is recommended,

For A Quick Fill-In: Fast-Growing Plants

In countless situations there is a need for something in a hurry from trees and shrubs: A family moves into a sun-landscaped home and is eager to make the place lived-in; a need for shade is created by the loss of a tree; an unsightly view needs to be screened-off; or appearances need enhanced for an upcoming party.

If you find yourself in any of these situations, or are starting from scratch with a new home, there are many fast-growing plant materials for a quick fill.

Besides a happy selection, this is an excellent time to plant. Fall-planted trees and shrubs become established before cold weather arrives. Root systems continue to develop in winter; even though no new top growth may be evident, says the California Association of Nurserymen. Plants set-out in fall are able to take advantage of the full growing season, beginning with the very first flush of spring.

This can mean extra feet of growth, and shade, next year, when it comes to planting trees now, rather than waiting until spring to plant. Your nurseryman can show you the varieties he recommends for local conditions—and the planting site you have in mind.

A tall shrub or small tree is the Victorian Box. It grows rapidly and will take shaping, if you desire. Where winter frost is a threat, use Oleanders, Bottle Brush, and Wax Leaf Privet.

Round Steak--Your Money's Worth

A wise consumer, using food ads, can do a few minutes of comparative shopping and save $3 or $5 on her next visit to the meat counter, so says University of California home advisor Sharon Higgins.

A real money's worth cut of meat is the round steak. With round steak, "what you see is practically what you eat," not much of it has to be trimmed off or thrown away. According to the Los Angeles County home advisor, round steak has the lowest percentage of fat of all beef steaks.

To save money, look for an advertised special on round steak. In one week's ad, prices for round steak, bone-in, varied from $1.19 to $1.59 per pound.

Next, consider buying a large cut (3-4 inches thick) and then you really save some money. A full round steak contains three sections which vary in tenderness. These parts differ in tenderness because they contain different muscles. Top round, the largest section of the round steak is the most tender. Choice graded top can be cut into boneless steaks and broiled like more expensive steaks. Or, a choice graded 3 or 4 inch thick top round section can become a roast and be oven-roasted.

The eye-of-round section is the smallest and it is not as tender as top round. When it is a choice graded cut, steaks can be cut thin and pan-broiled.

Or, you can cook it as an eye of the round roast. Often, eye-of-round roasts sell at 30 to 50 cents per pound higher than the full round steak.

The third section, bottom round, is less tender and in all grades should be cooked with moist heat. A roast (braised) or stew meat are possible cuts from the bottom round.

"Buy a large cut n' save," says Mrs. Higgins. A 3 or 4 inch thick choice graded full cut round steak takes but a few minutes to cut up into the top round, bottom round and eye of the round. A few minutes of work can save you $3 to $5 plus you have several weeks of family meals.
